Don't worry, there will be PLENTY of people going in there and creating LOTS of sentences separated by two—or three—or four---spaces... ☺

Oh, now I'm on there. But I wish I weren't. I don't want to be part of this madness. CALGON!

She probably hasn't added you yet.

OMG, I got a FLURRY of emails (none of which had the LAN ids, of course, because that would be too logical) from Regions 9 AND 6. At least 5 MORE people will now have access to the page.

Yay, more cooks!! ☺

Emergency Response to King Mine

On August 5, 2015, EPA was conducting an investigation in Colorado, to:

- assess the on-going water releases from the mine
- treat mine water, and
- assess the feasibility of further mine remediation

While excavating loose material that had collapsed, opening the adit (mine tunnel) and spilling the water into Cement Creek, a tributary of the Animas River. EPA is working with agencies, states and tribes to evaluate potential impacts from the release.

Actually, I don't have access to this new site. Not editing access, if that's what you mean.

I don't know how you always spot these so quickly! ☺

By the way, Christine and I are working on a NEW national site, and you and I (and someone from Region 9, for some reason) have access to it:

<https://wcms.epa.gov/goldkingmine>

HQ absolutely does NOT want the public to have access to the OSC site. Um, yeah, isn't it too LATE for that? ☺

While you're in there:

EPA is sharing information as quickly as possible with the public as experts work to evaluate any effects the spill may have on drinking water, public health, agriculture, fish and wildlife. Regular updates on the response for the public and the media will be published as they are available.
